

THE CRISIS IN AMBAZONIA TODAY

Root causes

Ambazonia (Formerly known as British Southern Cameroons) is a West African nation located between Cameroun and Nigeria and currently under occupation by the French neo-colonial regime in Cameroun. This occupation has been in place since an ill-fated UN plebiscite on a confederacy between the two countries in 1961. As a Mandate B territory of the UN, the British were charged with the responsibility of getting her to Self-determination but that was not the case. In 1954, British Southern Cameroons then attained a quasi or semi independent status from the British who had ruled her as part of Eastern Nigeria following the 1919 partition and 1922 international boundaries recognition by the League of Nations which finally became the United Nations in 1945.

The Southern Cameroons Order in Council vested the new government of E.M.L Endeley (1954-1959) and J.N Foncha (1959-1961) with every administrative power other than defence and external relations which was reserved for the Her Majesty Government. As earlier said, the British for varied reasons not fully understood today, decided to go by way of a plebiscite to decide the future of Southern Cameroons (Ambazonia) rather than their original task of leading the people to total independence. The UN resolutions and declarations as well as state practice, set the parameters for de-colonisation following World War II on the basis of self-determination. The United Nations resolutions in the 1950s presented the right to self-determination as a prerequisite for the enjoyment of human rights and an idea deserving respect from all member states. The 1960 Declaration on the Granting of Independence to Colonial Countries and Peoples (UN General Assembly Resolution 1514 of 14 December 1960) asserted that continued subjugation and denial of human rights is an impediment to world peace and cooperation. Thus, "All peoples have the right to self-determination by virtue of that right they freely determine their political status and freely pursue their economic social and cultural development." Yet in an ill-fated plebiscite of 11 February 1961, Southern Cameroons was forced not by choice but by design to join the already independent La République du Cameroun (which had independence on January 1, 1960 and joined the UN in September of the same as an independent nation) on a Confederacy to be decided following Article 5 of the April 21, 1961 Resolution 1608;

Invites the Administering Authority, the Government of Southern Cameroons and the Republic of Cameroun to initiate urgent discussions with a view to finalizing before 1 October 1961, the arrangements by which the agreed and declared policies of the parties concerned will be implemented

By virtue of the above, the future of the Trust Territory was to be decided between Britain ( Administering Authority),the Government of J. N Foncha (Southern Cameroons) and President Ahidjo (of the already Independent Republic of Cameroun). A treaty thus had to be worked out and deposited at the U.N Secretariat in application to Article 102(1) and the Statute of the International Court of Justice (I.C.J) which states

Every treaty and every international Agreement entered into by any member of the United Nations after the present Charter comes into force shall as soon as possible be registered with the Secretariat and published by it

Clearly, this was never the case as Britain never showed up at Foumban. The inexperienced Southern Cameroons and J. N Foncha was left alone to deal with the already independent Republic of Cameroun which had by her side legal experts from France.

The fact that Britain failed to turn up at the Tripartite conference in Foumban ties with the views of a certain school of thought which holds that the UN simply set a trap for Britain and she fell inside. According to this school of thought, Britain was supposed to prepare her Trust Territory of British Cameroons for self determination. The idea of a Plebiscite was as solely that of Britain which was contrary to the UN principle of Self Determination. The UN knew that based on the Vienna 1969 United Nations Convention on the Laws of Treaties, a treaty could never be worked out between Southern Cameroons and the Republic of Cameroun due to the fact that the former was not a full state.

With no union treaty signed between Southern Cameroons and the Republic of Cameroun, the union became illegal from birth.

For many years there have been waves of protest over the second class status that has been forced on the people of Ambazonia within the Cameroonian system. Despite formal agreement that, as part of the confederacy, Ambazonians get to keep their autonomous institutions, Cameroun has gradually pushed and eliminated many vital civil society structures, including a network of parent/teachers associations and liberties based legal system.

After so many years of neglect and marginalisation in every sphere of life, the magma that has been boiling since 1961 with the annexation of Ambazonia (the gross violation of Article 47(1) of the Federal Constitution, the complete assimilation of a people in 1984 following Mr Paul Biya's Decree No 001/4 of 4 February 1984, the gradual imposition of the French language in the English sub,-system of Education and the corrosion of the Common Law system in the annexed Ambazonia) exploded in 2016 as lawyers and teachers had to call for an industrial strike action on the 21 of October and 21 of November 2016 respectively. The raison d'être, the return to the Confederal system imposed on Ambazonia by the UN in cahoots with Britain and France. In response to peaceful demonstrations in the fall of 2016 against attempts to replace the Ambazonian judicial and educational systems with what amounts to the French colonial system, the Cameroun military used helicopter gunships to shoot live ammunition at protests, chased down and executed hundreds of unarmed protesters, and detained more than a thousand summarily and without charge. To prevent the people from reporting these crimes to the outside world, the French neo-colonial regime in Cameroun cut internet access to the entire territory for six months, and have since returned it only intermittently and at their arbitrary discretion.

AMBAZONIAN PRISONERS OF CONSCIENCE (APOC)

The civilian population arrested arbitrarily in Southern Cameroons have become known as The Ambazonian Prisoners of Conscience (APOC). These are young men and women arrested arbitrarily by the Yaoundé regime because they dare stood up for liberty, justice and equality. The arrested civilian protesters have since been subjected to show trials by the Cameroun military tribunal, which is in violation of the

- Preamble of the Cameroun's Constitution (the right to a free and impartial trial ),
- The Universal Declaration of Human Rights (The Right to freedom of expression -Article 19),
- The African Charter on Human and Peoples';the right to peaceful assembly and demonstration is guaranteed under Article 11 of the African Charter, and that all Cameroonian citizens have to be treated equally without any discrimination (Article 2 of the African Charter),
- Communication 266/03 in Kevin Mwanga Gunne at all Cameroun to "stop the transfer of accused persons from the Anglophone Provinces for trial in the Francophone Provinces";
- Principles and Guidelines on the right to a fair trial and legal assistance in Africa Article G(c) "Military courts should not in any circumstances whatsoever have jurisdiction over civilians"

While most of these acts have been condemned by the UN, the AU, the European Union, International and local human rights organizations or advocacy groups about the fair trial of the accused (lack of independence, impartiality, competence and equality of arms) has so far remain silent. As of date, more than than 1000 people have been arrested in Southern Cameroons arbitrarily(see table 1 and list 3). So many Prisoners of Conscience can not be accounted for today and so many are held in undisclosed locations. A perfect example is the case of SISIKU AYUK TABE and the 48 abducted in Nigeria on January 5,2018 at the Nera Hotel in Abuja and repatriated to Cameroun against the International Law on Refoulement.

The numerous prisoners of conscience were charged with terrorism, secession, rebellion, incitement of civil war, false propaganda, insurgency etc using Cameroun's most disputed 2014 Anti Terrorism Law and thrown into jail to await trial. Most of the trials which have suffered adjournments upon adjournments until very recently, after 16 months, the executive controlled military tribunal in Yaoundé handed heavy prison sentences to some of the prisoners of conscience (see Table 2)

PRISON CONDITIONS

- Congested jails ( 4856 inmates occupying a space meant for 800 people)
- All Anglophone Prisoners of Conscience are not fed by the Cameroun government
- Language barrier in and out of courts
- Alienated from families who could have taken up the extra burden of feeding the detainees of conscience
- Poor health facilities (Wolen Vitalist died of Pneumonia in jail because of lack of follow up)
- Poor sanitation as the 4856 inmates share less than 20 squatting holes

- All Ambazonian Prisoners of Conscience sleep on the floor in tight air rooms because of the over crowded nature of the prison
